

Sunlight

*I wait for you, patiently like flowers wait for sunlight every night Knowing it is on its way, and certain that it will come but still missing every second that it must live without it.
Every part of the flower knows it has need of the light
Would perish without it So it is still, quiet with longing when the sun removes itself from its presence.*

*I wait for you patiently, like flowers wait for sunlight in the humble soil that holds me, but cannot feed me the way you do.
Every leaf, every petal misses you.
Every stem waits eagerly for the moment to see you come around that mountain, through the spaces in the tree, and down to me Waiting in this humble soil for the time when you will consume me in your warm heat for yet another day.*

I wait patiently for you My Love, My Sunlight

HC Sims